

Climate Change in Arizona: Current Knowledge and Future Collaborations Among the State Universities

James L. Buizer

*Director for Climate Adaptation and International Development
Professor, School of Natural Resources and the Environment
University of Arizona*

Jonathan Overpeck

*Co-Director, Institute of the Environment
University of Arizona*

Abe Springer

*Director and Professor School of Earth Sciences and Environmental Sustainability
Northern Arizona University*

Join us for a cross-university climate forum, as Arizona's premier climate scientists discuss the impacts of climate change on Arizona's water, energy, health, and economic systems and explore practical routes of collaboration among the three universities. We will also bid a fond farewell to Jim Buizer, as he departs ASU to join UA's Institute of the Environment as their new Director for Climate Adaptation and International Development.

Welcoming remarks by R. F. "Rick" Shangraw, Jr.
Director, Global Institute of Sustainability, Arizona State University

Moderated by Sander van der Leeuw
Dean, School of Sustainability, Arizona State University

Closing Comments by Laura Huenneke
Vice President for Research, Northern Arizona University
