On November 20, 1990, ASU President Lattie Coor dedicated the entire ASU Tempe campus as an arboretum. Currently, faculty, staff, and students are mapping every tree on campus and bringing new life to the Arboretum. Key players in the Arboretum Tree Mapping project will show how they are able to map out large quantities of trees and calculate sustainability metrics (CO₂ reduction, energy conservation, replacement value) to add to our ASU Campus Metabolism measurements.

Learn more about the ASU Arboretum and enjoy a lunch with locally harvested foods.
