

Well-being, Public Policy, and Complex Urban Systems

Philip D. Allsopp

Transpolis Global, USA, Inc.

In this talk, Allsopp will review well-being metrics and examine the impacts of public policy based on incomplete urban, infrastructure, social and economic models. A case study of Native American housing will be used to highlight the negative impacts of inadequate attention to well-being and place-making.

Allsopp spent 26 years in the management consulting field leading health care industry and system dynamics practices with major firms including A.T. Kearney and Science Applications International Corporation. Phil is a Ph.D. candidate at Kingston University, London, UK and is conducting research in Arizona into the impacts on wellbeing and human emotions of the visual characteristics of place.

Tuesday, March 18, 2014
12:00 - 1:15 p.m.

Wrigley Hall, Room 481
Arizona State University, Tempe campus
(lunch will be provided)

RSVP link: Download any free QR-Code reader app to your smart phone. Scan this code and it will take you directly to the RSVP page.

RSVP: sustainabilityevents@asu.edu

Parking and directions: sustainability.asu.edu/directions

For more information about this and other events, visit sustainability.asu.edu/events

The Sustainability Series is presented by ASU's Global Institute of Sustainability.