

Radically Simple Campus-Community Sustainability Partnerships

Jessica Barlow

*Professor, School of Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences
San Diego State University*

Barlow directs the Sage Project within the Center for Regional Sustainability. She serves on the University's sustainability committee, climate-action planning council, and on projects that incorporate sustainability into the curriculum.

The Sage Project is based on a model campus-community partnership being replicated nationwide. It is a radically simple way to engage large numbers of students with real-world projects that address the community's pressing social, economic, and environmental challenges.

In this talk, Barlow will describe the projects and the resulting benefits for students, faculty members, the University, and the larger community.

Brown Bag Lunch

Tuesday, October 20, 2015
12:00-1:15 p.m.

Wrigley Hall, Room 481
Arizona State University, Tempe campus

Parking and directions:
sustainability.asu.edu/directions

For more information about this and other events, visit:
sustainability.asu.edu/events

Seating is limited, so please RSVP for this event.

RSVP: sustainability.asu.edu/events

The Sustainability Series is presented by ASU's Julie Ann Wrigley Global Institute of Sustainability.